Dear Parent and carers

Unfortunately, due to a few typing errors in one of the recent orders we placed we have some excess stock that we are looking to get rid of. We invite parents and families to come and collect any of the goods delivered in error should they wish.

Last week we ordered 100 pens for children to use in classrooms. Unfortunately, we have taken delivery of 100 hens. If there are any budding farmers or parents that want to take a couple of hens, please come to school to collect. The fresh eggs I enjoyed for breakfast this morning were lovely.

We have also recently ordered 100 hats for children to wear in the summer months to keep our selves sun safe, however this morning we have had 100 cats delivered.

We could just about cope with the extra hens in schools, with staff coming in to look after them over the weekend, but the cats are going to prove very difficult to care for over the easter holidays.

I am pleased to share that the company has assured us we will get our pens and hats later this week.

If you want to come and collect any hens or cats, please contact Mr. Averis who will be happy to help.

Regards

Mr. Averis
